Spit! Spit!
Fellow came up to us at the Hall the other day.
Say, he says, do you realize that Mumbling Minnie, Mumbling Mick, Umdor and Colle are all better columnists than you are?
Of course we realize it, we told him, being modest.
Do you know what that makes you?
Can't think off-hand, we said.
A Fifth Columnist!
Brother, you just touched the high spots. Why, we go in for reputational sabotage!

Well, girls?
Somehow got involved in a heated bull session the other day with some engineers about whether or not coeds should be admitted into the faculty of Engineering.

As an Arts student, of course, we simply told them they didn't know what they were missing. Nothing keeps you awake and interested in life during a dry lecture like observing the beautiful coed just across the aisle.

"Look," said an Engineer (don't know how that got spelt with a capital), "look, do you think we want any women in our department? Did you SEE what they did to the Architecture Department? Do you think we want the Engineering Building painted a pale pink?"
Ah, yes, the rainbow room.

The Morgue...
Latest developments regarding the Morgue, whose rehabilitation has been championed in this column, are that 2 pictures were hung on the walls and then 1 was removed. The other 1 is still there, if you care to drop around and admire it. No one seems to know quite what it represents.

The same old copy of Esquire is still there.
Look, girls, why don't you provide hostesses for the place?

Another Appeal...
Heavens knows we get into enough trouble about the stories we tell. About the only way out is for us to print, anonymously, stories that are left for us on the bulletin board at the Daily Office. This works out beautifully, providing the story gets past the rigid censorship of the Feature Editor. Then you can get even with Cecilia X. or John Q. for standing you up last Saturday by having the true facts appear here. And we get a little dirt for the column and if anybody gets wrathful we just say, it was sent to me.

Well, you've answered a lot of appeals lately.
Anyone interested in this one? If you're a coed, and blonde, we won't print the item unless name and telephone number are enclosed. Requests for anonymity will be respected, this is just as evidence of good faith, of course.

What started this...
What brought all this up was that one person actually was thoughtful enough to leave a little gossip for us.

The story concerns the fact that a well-known ex-professor was observed at the desk in the library the other day, and as he presented a book to be stamped, the librarian said,
"Why, Dr. —, are you actually going to read THIS?" or words to that effect.

To which the Doctor replied,

Visiting N.Y.U. Debaters
Vie with McGill Tonight

Topic Is United States
Declaration of War

The second in the series of Inter-Collegiate Debates is scheduled to take place tonight at 8.45 p.m. in the Common Room of the Royal Victoria College.

The guest team will be from New York University. McGill will uphold the affirmative of the resolution: "Resolved that the United States immediately declare war against Germany." The N.Y.U. team will defend the negative.

The speakers for the New York team are Stanley Marshall and Arthur Immerman. The former is captain of the Varsity Debating Team; he is also the Editor of the John Marshall Pre-Law Review, and member of the Undergraduate Scholarship Team, and a member of the Adam Smith Society and an Honours Student in History.

The second speaker, Arthur Immerman, is a Political Science major. He is manager of Varsity Debating Team, secretary of the Gavel Club, and member of the John Marshall Pre-Law Society. The speakers on the McGill side are to be Sandy Stalker, from the Faculty of Law, and Don Delvin, a junior in Commerce.

Each team is to deliver two ten-minute speeches, and there will be two five-minute rebuttals.

The three judges will be: Mr. Leslie Buzzell, C.A., a partner with McDonald, Currie & Co.; Prof. J. P. Day, professor of Economics at McGill University; and Mr. H. J. Roast, a member of the International Service Committee of the Rotary Club. The majority out of three judges will make the decision for the winning team.

The visiting team will be entertained by some of the members of the McGill Debating Union, and will be guests of Douglas Hall.

During the debate members of the Red Wings Society will usher. The chairman of the meeting will be the President of the McGill Debating Union, Ernest Skutetzky.

Berkeley's Philosophy
To Be Discussed by S.C.M.

The Philosophy Discussion Group of the S.C.M. will hold a meeting tonight at 6 p.m., in the Conference Room of Strathcona Hall. Winston Mahabir, native student from the West Indies, will lead a discussion on the philosophy of Bishop Berkeley.

The philosophy of the outstanding idealist, Bishop Berkeley, may be summarized by his own words "I think therefore I am," or in Latin "Cogito ergo sum," and this will form the backbone of the discussion.

Any students who are interested in philosophy in general or in this evening's topic in particular are invited to attend the meeting.

Attitudes Towards Medicine Will Be
Topic of Lecture

The bi-weekly meeting of the Pre-Medical Society will be held at 5.15 this afternoon in the Union grill-room. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. H. F. Moseley, general and orthopedic surgeon at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal. He has chosen to address the Society on the topic "The attitudes toward medicine of medical and pre-medical students."

Dr. Moseley is a McGill graduate, and holds the rank of Lecturer in Surgery in the Medical faculty. He received his Arts degree here in 1926, and the following year entered Oxford with the distinction of a Rhodes Scholarship. In 1929 he was accorded an honours degree in Arts, and was later honoured by membership in the Royal College of Physicians and the Royal College of Surgeons. He became associated with St. Thomas' Hospital in London, an appointment which he maintained until his return to this continent in 1938.

His career was further distinguished by Master's degrees in Arts and Surgery, received in 1934, and finally by a Doctorship in Medicine, achieved four years afterwards. He was Harmsworth Senior Scholar at Merton College, Oxford, and for two years occupied the Resident Surgical Office at the university. Post-graduate studies took him from Oxford to London, Paris, Bern, Zurich, Marseilles, Vienna, Heidelberg, Boston, and most recently, Montreal. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, an Associate of the British Orthopaedic Association, and a member of the Canadian Medical Association and of the Montreal Medico-Chirurgical Society. At the Convocation of 1938, McGill conferred the degree of LL.D. on Mr. Lapointe; and it will be noticed today that the flag atop the Arts Building is at half-mast in honour of the Minister of Justice. In the words of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, "His passing leaves us void."

Buffet Supper Tickets
Will Go On Sale Today

Tickets are now available for the Women's Annual Buffet Supper, which is going to be held on December 8th at 6.30 p.m. in R.V.C. This event is an annual affair to which all women students of McGill are invited and urged to attend.

"The evening should be more enjoyable," stated a member of the executive, "due to the entertainment which will be provided by many of the campus societies, each of which is putting on a skit." The tickets may be obtained from any member of the Class Executive for the small fee of thirty-five cents.

Coldwell Will Address
Mass Meeting Tonight

"Canadian and British Democracy at War" is to be the topic of M. J. Coldwell and Angus MacInnes, Leader and Vice-President of the National C.C.F., at a mass meeting in the main ballroom of the Mount Royal Hotel tonight at 8.15.

Mr. Coldwell, who lived in England for many years, has just returned from a visit to the British Isles, and will tomorrow inaugurate a trans-Canada lecture tour on British Democracy at war.

Angus MacInnes, of Vancouver, will talk in conjunction with Coldwell on "Canadian Democracy at War."

Prof. Odlozilik
Will Lecture

Authority Also
To Address the Historical Clubs

Professor O. Odlozilik, formerly of the Charles University of Prague, will be at McGill today, and will lecture this morning at nine in Moyse Hall, his topic being, "Events in Central Europe Since 1918." The lecture is sponsored by the Department of History, but all students interested are urged to attend. Professor Odlozilik will also speak at a dinner to be given in his honour by the combined Men's and R.V.C. Historical Clubs tonight at 7.30 at the Sherbrooke Cafe in the Sherbrooke Apartments.

He has held several important positions on the continent in various Universities as an authority on Central European History, and particularly that of Czechoslovakia. Since the invasion of that country Professor Odlozilik has been lecturing at Columbia University, and from here he is proceeding to the Universities of Toronto and Queen's, where he has been invited to lecture on European affairs.

Since what has happened in Europe during the past twenty years also forms a part of his own personal experience, and the subject upon which he is lecturing is of particular timeliness, it should be of great interest to the majority of the students, stated a member of the Staff.

Labour Chief
To Report

I.L.O. Confab
Topic of Cosmo
Meet Tonight

Dr. Pierre Waelbroek, Chief of the Employment and Migration section of the International Labour Office, will address the Cosmopolitan Club at 8.30 p.m. tonight in Strathcona Hall.

The subject of his address will be: "The International Labour Conference, 1941." Dr. Waelbroek and his colleagues recently returned to Montreal from the Conference in New York City, and this is the first opportunity given members of the University to hear a report of the Conference from an eye-witness.

The speaker was born in Ghent, Belgium, and received the degree of Doctor of Laws at the University of Ghent. He served with the Belgian Army, and was wounded in World War I. At the end of the war he worked with the Ministry of Economic Affairs of the Belgium Government, first in Le Havre, and then in Brussels.

When the League of Nations was formed, Dr. Waelbroek joined the staff of the Information Section in London. When the League moved to Geneva, he became Chief of the Editorial Section. In 1938 he was appointed to the position of Chief of the Employment and Migration Section. The speaker and his colleagues came to Montreal with the I.L.O. on the invitation of the University. The program for the evening will conclude with refreshments and dancing to a nickelodeon. This meeting is open to all students of the University and their friends. Admission is free.

Conditions for Student Grants
Are Released in Complete Detail

Under the mechanics announced for the new plan to re-habilitate ex-service men back into university life, the Minister of Pensions and National Health may make grants under the following conditions:

No man, if single, may receive more than nine dollars per week, nor may a married man exceed the maximum of thirteen dollars for the same length of time.

Grants will be made to such persons as are pursuing vocational, technical, or other educational training, provided that the Minister approves such training as being advantageous in the securing of employment, and if a satisfactory proficiency is maintained.

Dischargees who were regularly enrolled in a University before serving, and who re-enter within fifteen months after discharge, or those who are admitted for the first time within these fifteen months,—allowing for the completion of matriculation studies, and for illness—will also be paid the above amounts per week as above.

Those students who were following graduate studies prior to enlistment, or who intend to take up that type of work will be paid the stipendium as cited if their studies are resumed as soon as possible, at the most within a year.

Any of these three groups—vocational, undergraduate, or graduate—may further receive "a payment on his behalf not exceeding the tuition fees, students' fees, and athletic fees or other charges and costs of his course."

Grants will not be made to such as are receiving rehabilitation benefits or monetary compensation for unemployment unless the student's ability or his work be a matter of public interest.

McGill's War Effort Theme Of Program

William Strange, the Canadian author who is already known to McGill for his participation in the Military Tattoo and Sports Rally, which was held last October 22, has visited McGill again in connection with the university's part in the next "Carry on, Canada" broadcast. A plan was submitted to Mr. Strange, who writes the script for the program, to devote one or more programs to the war activities of the colleges of Canada, and he agreed (Continued on Page Four)

Freshette Bridge Game
Aids McGill War Effort

The freshettes of R.V.C. '45 held a card game at R.V.C. last night in order to raise money for their contribution to the War Effort.

Bridge formed the main recreation of the evening but other games were provided for those who did not wish to play cards. Towards the end of the evening, there was a sing-song and then refreshments were served.

The President of First Year thought that the Freshettes had not contributed fully enough to McGill's War Effort and so it was decided to hold a bridge,

Monetary Aid

Grants Aid Both
Technical and Academic Tuition

A recent Order-in-Council, named "The Post-Discharge Re-establishment Order," has been passed with a view to aiding the rehabilitation of such active service men as wish to continue their education upon discharge from the forces. A maximum sum of nine dollars per week will be paid to single men, and of thirteen dollars to those who are married.

Though this information has been current among Canadian universities for some time, it has not been possible to publish it till now, because of the uncertainty of the plans, which even yet are not quite definite.

Directly responsible for the post-war student aid plan are several government committees, chiefly the War Pensions Committee, under the chairmanship of Dean Cyrus MacMillan of the Faculty of Arts, along with the Committee on Reconstruction headed by the Principal, Dr. Cyril James. As a result of their efforts it will become possible for enlisted men whose education has been interrupted to resume a preferred course of study. "Orderly re-establishment in civil life on discharge" is the proposed purpose of the Order, and extensive provisions are being made not only to supply the former soldiers with civilian clothes and transportation to their home or point of enlistment, along with remedial medical treatment and disability pensions, but also a money grant for rehabilitation, and vocational training facilities with preferred employment.

Specific details of the plan which are pertinent to students appear elsewhere on this page.

Although no such point has been made in the official release, a recent editorial from the Varsity has pointed out that the Government has by no means committed itself in respect of these payments, but that it has merely set up the legal machinery for making the payments. The editorial puts forth the opinion that the Government cannot justly be censured, however, for not making definite promises at this point in a yet unended and costly war, since there can be no proper estimation of the number of those who may have to be provided for. The value of such a scheme can hardly be exaggerated, it was considered, and a review of those students who have left Toronto to serve shows 2,200 prospective beneficiaries.

The like comments will appertain in all other Canadian Universities, and it will be an added incentive to service for the nation to those who have hesitated heretofore because of their education's incompleteness.

On the Libyan Front

British troops formed a junction in heavy strength last night in the Rezegh Area, and moved forward for a decisive battle for Libya. One third of the tank strength of the Axis column moving eastward was smashed before it reached the Egyptian border, and moreover faced a strong new concentration of British tanks which had been held in reserve.

Speculation on Cabinet Changes

Transport Minister Cardin is regarded by many as slated to be the logical successor to the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, who died yesterday. Other rumours are that the Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain will be appointed to the bench. Both these changes will necessitate further ones, especially since Mr. Casgrain now holds the two portfolios of Transport, and Public Works.

Hull Presents brief

Japan's two envoys to the United States, Ambassador Nomura, and Special emissary, Kurosu, were handed what was officially described as a "document" by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. It was believed to be a plan for peace in the Pacific, based on Hull's "non-aggression" doctrine, and therefore its reception was considered to be highly uncertain.

Vol. XXXI—No. 41

The decision of the Students' Council to restrict the number of social functions to a reasonable minimum has, perhaps, an unsought benefit because the surviving events should attract a proportionally larger attendance at each, and with the smaller overhead, financial risk will be correspondingly reduced.

Doubtless, the students will not, in consequence of the Council's decision, cut down their recreation time. Nevertheless, they should take full advantage of the campus activities that do remain for in so doing they are not only supporting their own Students' Society in its efforts in their behalf, but are providing themselves with the least expensive form of entertainment and, moreover, the greatest benefit of campus life—fellowship.

That the Junior Prom should be held again this year, there is no question, for this time-honoured function is not confined to any one section of the campus. Its all-inclusive nature gives it precedence over all other events, and therefore it comes within the reasonable minimum.

Although rapid returns of the ticket-selling campaign would indicate a capacity attendance, which is as it should be, students wishing to go to the dance should not be discouraged if they have not already bought a ticket, for although they are going fast, the limit has not yet been reached.

The Prom Committee should be commended for their sporting gesture in sacrificing financial returns to allow a considerable number of airmen from the McGill Detachment, R.C.A.F. to attend the dance at a reduced rate. It would be unfortunate, however, if a number of them were prevented from coming simply because of lack of an escort. It might be pointed out that many have arrived in Montreal only a short time ago and are not likely to have become well acquainted with the resident population. Surely it would be a patriotic deed on the part of the coeds, and lots of fun, if steps were taken to meet the situation.

The Air-Force at McGill—

The Radiolocators stationed at McGill form as integral a part of the university in wartime as the students themselves, for their course is as long and difficult as any the university has to offer. Why then should they not be entitled to take part in all recreational activities at the university? They could be allowed to use the McGill Union as much as they choose; a billiard table could be reserved for their exclusive use. This they could be permitted to use free of charge without loss to the Union, for it is seldom that all the billiard tables are used simultaneously. They should be invited, moreover, to play bridge, chess or attend any club meeting in which they may be interested. They could also be granted a column in the Daily to report about their activities.

Many of the Air Force boys live out of town and would appreciate being invited to dinner some Sunday. With co-operation from the student body, especially the coeds, it would be possible to arrange for groups of two Air Force men to be invited to various students' houses, so that a greater understanding may arise between the two. Let us hope that the Union House Committee and the War Council might do something along these lines.

International Student Service

The International Student Service is an international organization with Canadian headquarters in Toronto, which appeals for funds to relieve suffering, promote friendship and understanding and keep alive a sense of social responsibility among the students displaced by the present wars. In Europe the fund is administered by a committee which consists of representatives of I.S.S., of the World's Student Christian Federation, and of the Roman Catholic Organization, "Pax Romana." Last year about $30,000 was expended. In China, the committees consist of university deans, professors and students and last year expended about $40,000. Canadian universities contributed $2,300 towards the total last year.

In Canada, Mr. Dale Brown, a secretary of the European Student Relief Fund, whose work has been to contact and assist University students in Prisoner of War and Refugee camps here, has recently made a report which is herewith summarized.

"Work in the Prisoner of War Camps is important not only because it gives us opportunity to express to these young men that our way of life is different from that practised by the present leaders of their fatherland, but also because it enables similar work to be carried on reciprocally with Canadian and British prisoners of war in Germany."

In the Refugee Camps education has been quite extensive. One hundred students took their matriculation examinations with McGill University in June and September. Of these, sixty-five passed, fifteen scoring 80 per cent. or more. This has been a remarkable achievement, in view of the shortness of time for preparation, the lack of facilities and space for study, and the scarcity of teachers familiar with the Canadian system of education. The results achieved this year have encouraged more students to work towards the examinations next year. Present enrolment is approximately one hundred seventy in the three camps. They are not letting their desire for release deter them from using the time they are spending in the camps to the best advantage.

Correspondence courses have been arranged with Queen's University in Arts, and with one or two of the technical institutes in Engineering. This work has been encouraged by government authorities and by the commanding officers of the camps themselves. The Student Relief Fund has been able to supply sufficient books so that these courses can be carried on and in addition has obtained a number of books to assist these men to establish their own classes in advanced university work.

Many courses are being taught systematically under experienced leadership. There are language classes, history and philosophy classes, classes in law conducted by lawyers, and in medicine organized under the doctors in the camp.

The extent of this constructive work which is being carried on is determined by the various capacities of the leaders, but more especially by the material available. An intense need is felt for matriculation texts and for books on all university subjects. Texts which have been accumulated over a period of years by university students and are no longer useful to themselves will be welcomed by the International Student Service and put to immediate use in the Refugee Camps. Those who wish to do more may adopt one or two of these students by helping them with the fees for correspondence courses and by writing to them.

The Slouch of Time...

Larry Thor, CFCF newscaster, drew the following parody of the March of Time to our attention.

Narrator: The Slouch of Time! Behind the news of the century lies mighty, unknown drama. Tonight we bring you the real life stories behind the headlines... the news as it really is. Time Slouches On! (Bugle call.) We take you to Washington, where upon the witness stand (at the movie propaganda hearings) sits a well known movie figure, known and loved throughout the world (Voices huzzab).

Voice: Quiet!

Voice: And you know full well... that your last picture was an atrocious lie to bring the United States closer to the brink of war. What have you got to say to that?

Donald Duck: Ah Phooooooey. Wah, wah, wah.

What It Costs

The CBC in the last fiscal year ending March, 1941, had a net operating revenue of $185,585, spent $1,720,000 on programs, $748,000 on engineering, and paid network stations $728,000 for commercial network programs. The corporation obtained $3,000,000 from receiving licences, and close to $1,000,000 from commercial programs.

Radio News Notes

At a rehearsal of "Kay Thompson and Company" heard over CKAC, Conductor Walter Gross wanted a fast and loud ending on a musical number. To insure results he roared: "Anyone who breathes is fired." Fifty-one students of the radio course at Long Island University, voted 39 out of 51 for the Aldrich family, heard over CBM, from NBC Red...

Prospective writers on the campus should try their hand at radio script writing... Edward R. Murrow, chief of Columbia's European news staff, now on his way back to the U.S., was selected as the "Man of the Year" by the Kappa Sigma fraternity... In a few weeks we hope to be running a series of articles by our very good friend, Will Davidson, chief announcer of CKY, Winnipeg, who was associated with the CBC in Montreal a few years back... Larry Ross, singing star of the Columbia network, will be interviewed over CKAC at 6 o'clock on Saturday afternoon... Music lovers will be glad to learn that CFCF has made arrangements to carry the Metropolitan Opera Guild series of Opera Previews every Thursday at 11.15... The first program will feature Laurence Tibbitt in a dramatization of "La Traviata"...

Exclusive....

News has just reached us that the forthcoming CBC drama hour production for Friday, Nov. 28 at 9.30 will be "A Shaft of Stone" an original radio script by Genevieve Barre, McGill graduate and present English publicity director for the CBC, Montreal. It will pay tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and will have Jacques Auger, well known French actor and Christopher Ellis in the leading roles. The production will be under the direction of Rupert Caplan.

An Announcer's Nightmare, the Radio Cliche:

With apologies to Variety we offer the following sample script of expressions commonly overworked in radio by announcers, known as clichés, and which very often crop up in their wildest nightmares between station breaks.

First of all the announcer has been sent out to handle a remote, i.e. away from the studio, show of some band at some night club. This is the way it would sound over the air:

ANN: The Dance Parade Carries On!!! Your host Sacha presents Joe Giotz and his orchestra. Remember! Never a cover charge. Never a minimum. At Goldberg's grotto, you can dine and dance amidst pleasant surroundings. And a spectacular Joe Burp floorshow twice nightly.

To describe the young singer, they often use the following:

ANN: Into the spotlight steps, petite, charming, vivacious, demure, eye-fall, vocal heartthrob, your favourite and mine... Genevieve Small... singing... that current ballad, a brand new hit.

An announcer gives a tip on how to run a quiz show as follows: He says "The most important thing to do, when employed as a quiz master, is to always repeat the words of the contestant." For example:

ANN: What's your occupation sir? ... Contestant: A plumber. ... ANN: Oh a plumber. How interesting. ... Do you understand how out little game is played?

And then, he goes on to ask him where he's from. When he says Verdun, the announcer says something like this:

ANN: Verdun, you say... Ah... I see we have a lot of Verdunites with us. This is always good for a solid, spontaneous round of applause from the studio audience.

And when introducing a speaker the announcer would say:

ANN: The opinions expressed on this program do not necessarily reflect those of the network or the station or the sponsor or the...

Finally, there are the familiar phrases of the high powered one minute commercial:

ANN: LADIES!!! ROAD TO REGINA

We rumbled on, the road a strip of searing sandpaper
Biting at the tortured tires,
My collar chafing, my small feet burning.
The yellow dust caking my throat.
Not a cloud decorating the bleached white sky
And not a green thing in sight.
All brown, gray, black.
All dead.

And then we were passing a great wheatfield.
I pointed with a grubby finger to the yellow streaks
Bobbing over the horizon
And I cried out above the roar
"What a wonderful crop!"

The brakes screeched and you could smell
the writhing lining
Even through the dust.
"You think that's a good crop, son?"
"I'll show you something."
Under the barbed wire we went
Up to a stool.
"Looks nice, doesn't it?" he said.
Then he picked a head and crushed it between his fingers.
The seeds crumbled like an eggshell.
"Rust," he said simply. "That fellow owes us
Eleven hundred dollars."
Empty shells.
All empty.

GRAVES

These were people. These were fierce events
Hating and hungering and tasting tears
At passion's crisis, teased alike with fears
And follies. Here, for future reference,
They moulded: one from battle garnered hence
In fragments, one exhausted with his years,
One in child-birth torn; simple and seers,
Young, old, good, evil—settling monuments.

These were sorrows, laughter, half-glance
For dreams, half-beast for lusts. O, what had they
These nameless, to be counted in the sway
Of dynasties, or with the bullet's whine?
Was not the clot of tears enough, the grey
Of leaping hangers, God, for this worn clay?

Donating Blood

Blood Groups

Perhaps the most important single discovery in the history of blood transfusions was made in 1900, when it was shown that the properties of all human blood are not alike and that certain blood would react when transfused into different individuals. The actual substances responsible were detected and found to be within the red blood cells. Now when transfusions of whole blood are made, both the donor and the recipient are "typed," and only if the donor's blood belongs to the same group as that of the recipient is it used.

Human blood falls into four distinct groups which are labelled O.A.B. and A.B. Blood from one group cannot be mixed with blood from another without serious and sometimes fatal reaction to the recipient. However, group O blood can be transfused into anyone with safety, and people with blood of this group are called "universal donors."

It has been found that the fluid part of the blood, called plasma, is just as good as whole blood for most transfusion purposes. Since the harmful reactions in transfusions were caused by the red blood cells, the use of plasma does away with this dangerous threat. Hence anyone's plasma can be used with safety, and there is no need to determine the group of the donor or recipient.

To obtain plasma, whole blood is allowed to stand for several days until all the red cells drop to the bottom, leaving a clear fluid on top. Sodium citrate is usually added to prevent clotting. The clear fluid is plasma, and is separated from the red cells.

Plasma has decided advantages over whole blood. It keeps well at room temperature and does not have to be preserved in a refrigerator. Transportation is simplified both on this account and also because plasma is not affected by shaking as are the red cells in whole blood. It can be stored for indefinitely long periods without deterioration, while whole blood cannot be kept for very long periods. And as mentioned, there is no need to "type" plasma, it can be transfused into anyone with safety.

Serum and Plasma

The blood donated to the Red Cross Clinic will not be changed into plasma but into powdered serum. Plasma and serum are both obtained from whole blood, but in the case of serum, the blood is allowed to clot. The clot is removed, and with it are the red cells (and other blood corpuscles) enmeshed in the fibrils of clot. This leaves a clear fluid, without any cells, and quite unable to clot. Plasma is also a clear fluid without cells, but if an anticoagulant such as sodium citrate were not present, clotting would occur. This difference between plasma and serum is of no other practical importance, and both can be used, either in the liquid or dry state, for transfusion purposes.

And dissected the spider away.

Footballers Hold Annual Banquet at Union Tonight

Spotlight on Sports by wyc

Every true undergraduate of old McGill is aware of the importance which the Alma Mater had in the origin of the grand old game of hockey but few students know that it was a former McGill graduate who originated the game of basketball, the game which vies with hockey for the winter limelight.

This year basketball is celebrating its golden jubilee and a nation-wide celebration is being staged in the States to erect a hall of fame to the originator of the game, Dr. James A. Naismith.

Similar arrangements are underway in Canada to commemorate the founder of the game, and McGill, being the Alma Mater of the originator, is taking the lead in this jubilee in Canada. Dr. Naismith after graduating from McGill with degrees in Arts and Theology took over the post of gymnasium instructor at McGill and served in this capacity from 1888 to 1890. The following year Dr. Naismith went to Springfield College to specialize in physical education and in the year 1891 originated the game of basketball.

In originating the game Dr. Naismith was searching for a game that could be played indoors as well as out and that was devoid of the physical contact of sports like soccer and lacrosse while possessing all the elements of skill, amusement and science. The extent to which Dr. Naismith succeeded in carrying out this chore may be seen from the attendance records at basketball games in the United States last year where 90,000,000 people watched the game.

Due to the war it is impossible for the Canadian teams to contribute to the basketball hall of fame being erected in Springfield but plans are going ahead to hold an all-star game at McGill the proceeds from which could go to buy War Savings Certificates. Thus, Canadian basketball teams could honour the memory of the Canadian founder of the game during the golden jubilee year, while also contributing to the war effort.

Many teams are being lined up across Canada to play games to contribute towards this gala golden jubilee celebration and McGill should be in the foreground of this celebration.

Also of interest to McGill students is the fact that Dr. Naismith's successor was also from the same small town of Almont, Ontario and R. Tait Mackenzie who took over Dr. Naismith's duties at McGill also made a great name for himself later in the States. The sculpturing which adorns the hall of the new Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium depicting the "Brothers of the Wind" is a work of R. Tait Mackenzie.

Signs are filtering down from the Forum that the McGill hockey teams are fast rounding into shape and arrangements are being made for the league opener on Monday noon. Also while we are on the subject of sports halls of fame we might point out that much talk is being heard around N.H.L. circles of commencing something along this line for the old reliable Canadian game of hockey. With all this talk various places are being named at which this memorial should be placed but if and when such a memorial is erected we see no excuse for placing it anywhere than at the site of the game's birth at McGill.

Oh yes, the McGill Outing Club are due to open their season's activities tonight with a meeting in the Union Ballroom at 8.00 o'clock at which various ski films will be shown. Great plans are being made for this club this year and the executive wishes to extend a hearty invitation for all skiers, beginners or experts, to attend this opening get together.

Well you can go back to sleep now. What? Oh, you did that a long time ago. Oh well, that is life.

SWIMMING CLUB
R.V.C. Swimming Club will hold its fourth meeting at the Y.W.C.A. pool . . . 1124 Dorchester Street. Time . . . 7 p.m. to-night at the pool. All students are welcome. Only equipment needed is a bathing cap.

Feast to Climax Intercompany Grid Season

Tonight the final event of the 1941 McGill football season will be staged when the Red gridiron heroes gather in the Union Cafeteria at 6.30 p.m. to enjoy an evening of feasting and merriment at the annual rugby banquet. This will mark the end of a campaign noted for its hard fought battles, though somewhat lacking in student support. This was not entirely the fault of the student body but may be in a large part attributed to the fact that most of the games were played on week days when many a pig-skin fan found himself unable to attend the contest.

DR. TEES TO SPEAK

Dr. F. J. Tees, Honorary President of the McGill Football Club will be the principle speaker of the evening and following his address various presentations and other speeches will be made. All gridriders who played on the various Intercompany squads are eligible to attend upon the payment of seventy-five cents which will cover the cost of the food beverages and entertainment. Unfortunately the Aggie football squad has not made arrangements to attend and it is doubtful if any of their players will be present.

Competition in the league during the past season was so keen and the squads so evenly divided that the championship was not decided until the final play of the final game had been completed. In this game Tepner of Army smashed through the Middles forward wall, blocked a kick, and as a result the former squad was able to come from behind and clinch the battle and league crown. Had the Tars won, and for a while it appeared very likely that they would, a post-season playoff tilt would have been played, but as things turned out the Army team completed their season undefeated and untied. Third place in the league was taken by the Air Force, a team whose star player, Jim Repelje, was injured early in the season and who as a result missed the majority of his team's games. The Airmen nevertheless played inspired football most of the time and lost the majority of their games by narrow margins. The weak slater among the gridriders was the Aggie team from Macdonald college. Though they started the season with a rush barely being edged in their first two games they soon collapsed and in the later stages of the schedule proved no match for the stronger McGill aggregates.

AT HEAD TABLE

At the banquet tonight many notable personages connected with athletics at McGill are expected to be present. Among those who will be seated at the head table are: T. L. Chowan (Chairman), Dr. A. S. Lamb, Hay Finlay, Dr. F. J. Tees, Doug Kerr, John Cloughes, Buster Fletcher, Stu Smith, W. Parke, Harry Grimes, Ralph Adams, Dink Carroll, Wayne Corse, Earl Smith, Rick Read, Jack Keay, and J. W. McKee.

Fencers Prepare For Ladder Tournament

The more elementary, and some of the finer points of fencing having been taught to the beginners at McGill for the past month or so, the way has been paved for a ladder tournament which will get under way within the next two weeks. Practices in fencing take place on Wednesday's and Friday's at 5.15, and yesterday the coach had a dozen prospective champions going through their "1, 2, 3, 4, 5, point" with vigour. Most of the men were newcomers as usual, and because of this the workouts in future will be a half-hour longer, the idea being that the more experienced fencers will have a chance to brush up on their movement before the tournament starts. This particular type of tourney is always welcome to the participants inasmuch as all men have opponents of equal calibre, while the leading fencers will receive prizes for their prowess. Weightlifting practices are going on as usual, and any afternoon of the week will find the more enthusiastic huskies going through their exercises in the B.W. & F. room. The men have been getting ready for the Meet which is scheduled to take place sometime in December, and will have their next regular workout tomorrow at 5 p.m.

The turnout of wrestlers at the college has been small to date, with only four turning up yesterday to go through their bags of tricks. This is a real disappointment inasmuch as the sport is such an active body-builder and healthy form of exercise. The cause of this neglect appears to be due to the thought that wrestling is usually accompanied by grunts and groans and broken bones and crushed noses. This false notion, usually the result of reading about the so-called "exhibitions" staged by the many "World's Champions," should be dispelled by the knowledge that wrestling, as practiced at the university, is a game as much as basketball or badminton are games, and injuries of any sort are very infrequent.

Renshaw Wins Coed Tennis

Defeats Mercer In Indoor Net Match

This afternoon at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club, the finals of the Martin Cup Trophy, emblematic of the Coed Tennis Championship, were played, thus bringing to a conclusion a most successful tournament. Claire Renshaw, junior provincial tennis champion, was the winner, defeating Barbara Mercer 6-1, 6-1.

PLAYERS ERRATIC

A month's layoff had taken the edge off both girls' games. Barbara was erratic with her backhands and overhead shots, although her forehand drive was extremely powerful. Claire played on the offensive throughout and outclassed her opponent due to her superior placing, and her drop shots proving particularly effective. She took the lead at the beginning, and the outcome of the match was never in doubt, but the game brought out a number of exciting rallies.

Claire Renshaw is following in the footsteps of her sister, Rosette, who won the trophy two years ago. Last year the tournament was not finished due to weather conditions.

Air Force Triumphant In Keen Softball Tilt

A snappy softball game took place yesterday afternoon in the Gym as the Air Force team No. 2 and "G" Coy. met in a playoff fixture of two innings. The final score was 15-3 for the bluecoats, this serving as a true indication of the relative batting powers of the squads.

The game started off comparatively slow as the firstman up for the Air Force walked, and the next struck out. However Anderson, third man up, hit a clean single through centre-field, to be followed by another walk. Then the fireworks really started as a triple by Farghar was followed in quick succession by a combination of four singles and two walks, and when the smoke of battle had finally cleared away the men in blue had earned nine runs on five singles and four walks. The inning was ended by a beautiful catch off the rafters by the "G" Coy. centerfielder. The home team then came to bats with hopes of doing equally well, but the fast ball of Leddy, Air Force pitcher, was good enough to strike out the first two men in succession, after which one man walked and the fourth man struck out, retiring the side with no runs nor hits.

The first half of the second inning was practically a replica of the first as the Air Force team gathered in six more runs as a result of two doubles and five singles. Some quick work by the "G" Coy. infield in catching two men at second, and a shoe-string catch off the far wall cut short the rally. "G" Coy. came back to work three successive passes off the opposing pitcher. This was followed by their only hit of the game, a single by Gibbon which was good for three runs. This closed the scoring for the game, and left the Air Force team in line for the final playoffs of the softball season.

Aggies Win Cage Contest

Defeat Engineers For Season's First Victory

By the score of 18-7, Macdonald College swamped E-3 in an Intercompany League basketball fixture yesterday. Macdonald thus breaks into the win column, after their defeat last Saturday by Ind. 1.

The game definitely showed that both teams were lacking in practice, and the brand of ball displayed was only mediocre. Wild floor-length passes and poor ball-handling in general featured both teams, with only one or two players showing up in good form. Cameron of Macdonald was the only consistent scorer of the night, in chalking up eight points, although Perrault of E Coy. and Ross Chapman, captain of the Macdonald quintet, both scored five. Score at half time was Mac. 7, E-3 4.

MANY FOULS

The wide-open type of game played gave referee Bill Braye plenty of trouble in keeping bodily-contact fouls at a minimum. Twenty persons were called, ten on the Engineers as against nine on Macdonald. In spite of Ross Chapman's feat of missing five in a row, Mac scored 4 out of 10 from the bucket, while E Coy. was missing eight out of nine attempted.

Line-ups:
Macdonald: Chapman (5), Anderson, Cordukes (2), Cameron (8), Rockwell, Jenkins, Sevigny (3), Craig, LeLacheur.—18.
E-R: Wein, Reir (2), Perrault (5), Goddard, Mahon, Clarke, Ogilvie, Covov, Cunningham, Leonard.—7.

Outing Club Meets to Plan Varied Future Activities

Members Gather in Union Ballroom Tonight at 8 p.m.

Unofficially, the McGill Outing Club will wait for the first heavy fall of snow to mark their opening events of the winter season, but the organization meeting to be held tonight at 8.00 p.m. in the Union Ball Room will be the first official "Indoor Meet" of the Outdoor Club. Reed Hyde, this year's President, will be in the chair. TO DISCUSS BUSINESS

The main purpose of the meeting will be to acquaint the members with the functions and constitution of the club and to give a preview of the activities planned. The business agenda is chiefly concerned with the election of an additional 15 members to form a General Council, which will assist an included executive of nine to set the Club's policies and arrange for future social and athletic events. It is among the Executive that will be found the Men's Ski Manager, the Women's Ski Manager, the Manager of Trips and Trails, and the Director of Publicity. Reed Hyde stresses the need for a large turnout at this first meeting, to insure the election of an active, live-wire council interested in the Outdoors. Mining and Geology students in particular will find that the club offers them an excellent chance to get out and view local topography and mineralogy at first hand.

MANY ACTIVITIES PLANNED

This year's club differs from those of other years in that its scope will be much wider. Instead of sponsoring competitive skiing only, the M.O.T. proposes to hold fall hikes, mountain climbing excursions and camping trips. An interesting feature this year, that of Outdoor and Nature Photography, is being considered, and will be discussed at the meeting tonight. Rounding out the business portion will be a list of prospective winter ski tours, presented for the approval of the members.

The entertainment portion of the evening will include a special showing of instructive skiing movies, and there will be dancing afterwards in the Grill Room.

The Executive of the Outdoor Club is as follows, from any of whom extra information can be obtained:

President Reed Hyde
Secretary Joan Anderson
Treasurer Jack Bailley
Membership and Equipment Chairman Earl Morris
Chairman of Trips and Trails John Brett
Men's Ski Manager . . . C. D. Townsend

William Strange Plans Broadcast

Mr. Strange will be making arrangements for the broadcast. Reports were made up by members of the Inner War Council on the various aspects of the war effort so far this year, and were given to Mr. Strange for use in planning the coming program, which will be broadcast this Sunday evening. The reports included information on all work either already completed, under way, or projected, as the salvage drives, the Blood Donors Registration, the Volunteer Reserve, the Research Reserve Registration, and the Mile of Pennies Campaign. Emphasis will be placed on the salvage work done so far, as it is the opinion of Mr. Strange that salvage collection constitutes the most important part of the university's war effort. Attention will also be given to the various other aspects of war activities. A choir chosen from the combined Men's and Women's Glee Club will take part in the program.

Arts Undergrad Society Ratifies Constitution

Society voted that thirty-two dollars be divided among four of the clubs, excluding the Debating Union as this society is under the jurisdiction of the Students Council. Some of the Society's plans for its future social activities were brought under discussion. The committees for the post mid-term smoker which will be held sometime late in January, and for the annual dance which will be held a few days later, were elected; and the proposed visit to a brewery was discussed. The plans advanced for this will be made known at a later date.

Application forms and detailed information may be had from the secretary, Mr. L. P. Audet, of the Department of Commerce at Quebec. Prizes, ranging from $50 to $15, will be distributed at the Provincial Exhibition in September, according to the announcement by the Hon. Oscar Drouin, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Dr. Beach has said that the University is the place for prospective business leaders to investigate and make themselves acquainted with such problems as the topic of this contest. The apathetic manner in which the Commerce men participated in the Mayhew Essay Contest, the Director pointed out, shows that they are not taking the full advantage of this opportunity that they should.

INSTRUCTOR DESCRIBES NAZI SABOTAGE IN PRE-WAR FRANCE

Saw Undisguised Agents In 1937 Prepare for Onset

Leroy J. Benoit is an instructor in French, a man who spends much of his time in Sever, many of his hours correcting papers, but he is an instructor who can tell an unbelievable tale of sabotage, of large-scale intrigue, of fifth-column. Attached to the American Embassy in Paris during the summers of 1936 and 1937 as interpreter, for a while liaison officer between the Embassy in Paris and in Berlin, and several months in the intelligence division of the Paris Embassy, Benoit saw at first hand a great part of what in his own words he describes as the "gigantic behind-the-scenes action which prepared the way for the final debacle, the collapse of France." The story he tells, unbelievable in 1937, seems all too familiar today.

Nazis Worked From Paris Fair

As far back as the summer in which Paris was the scene of the great international exposition, Benoit saw Nazi agents actually operating from the German pavilion which then stood on the bank of the Seine. Although their activity was known Benoit claims that the French contented themselves with making heated protests to the German Reich through customary diplomatic channels and accepted as satisfactory the avowed reprimands dispensed by the Berlin government.

Nazi exchange-instructors, assigned to the French universities in great numbers, were at that time travelling about the country armed with the familiar Leica, Benoit says. Instead of taking courses in French universities, they were studying French topography, communications, and public facilities.

As a sample of the work of these men, Benoit tells of the discovery by French authorities of a report "filled with a complete photographic history of the landing field at Tours, the munitions dumps, the number of planes, the number of pilots, maps of the principal highways, storage depots, granaries, and a hundred other things."

French Navy Photographed

Another instance cited is that of a message sent from Brest in the summer of 1937 which read like this: "The cruiser Colbert is in dock No. 6 Amannet 6425, forward guns carefully photoed, agents incited workmen's strike on Monday 18th." France awoke too late to these perils, says Benoit. "Her people were apathetic and unconcerned, her workers jealous of their pocket-books and not jealous enough of their fatherland," and he goes on to draw a parallel between the Vichy consuls in the United States and the German pavilion at the Paris Exposition. "Vichy is not France," maintains Benoit, "Vichy is Berlin, therefore Germany."

—HARVARD CRIMSON.

ARE SWEATER GIRLS JUSTIFIED? A STUDENT GIVES HIS OPINION.

The other day a young lady entered our class, and there arose concordantly a long whistle of appreciation for her look and her bearing. I was glad to be present at the refutation of Epstein's sneer about our "enfeebled generation." Intense though his "Genesis" may be, we,

the males, look for delicately moulded, more gracious and natural women. And the spontaneous tribute to which I have referred is a sign of returning vigor and a more salutary attitude. We find women good to look upon.

It is of the greatest importance that we retain an ever-present consciousness of women's worth. This age-long realization of the attractiveness of women will serve to turn men from modern passive enjoyment of movies, games and excessive expenditure, to the active building and maintenance of a home.

Here man has a distinctive advantage over other animals. In wild animals, what we may term sex-appreciation is periodic, functioning only in certain seasons. Indeed, in some humans, especially the aboriginal families of the inner Australian desert, there is only marked differentiation between male and female during certain times of the year. But in civilized countries it has become necessary that women be agreeable to men all the year round.

"The level of fertility in the more highly industrialized countries has now sunk below the limit at which no concomitant fall in mortality can prevent a continuous decline of population unless married people can be induced to have larger families." —Hogben.

In England and Wales, if fertility and mortality remain at their present level indefinitely, the population will be just one-half of its present size one hundred years hence. Thus women and the family must regain their position as man's first concern. We must learn to look upon birth as a natural, splendid event, to be hoped for and eagerly awaited, and not as an unauthorized encroachment of nurses habits.

A recognition of the potential of human welfare inherent in existing scientific knowledge will reveal the features of our modern life that are propitious to fertility.

There are several; I have indicated one important related factor. "Unwilling, I reveal a lotter mys-In solitude are throned the Goddesses, No Space around them, Place and Time still less;

Only to speak of them embarrasses, They are the Mothers!" —Mephistopheles.
